Yuta Nakamura: Willow Festival Little Willow Festival

November 18, 2017 – January 27, 2018

Gallery Koyanagi is proud to present a solo show by Yuta Nakamura, titled “Willow Festival Little Willow Festival” from Nov.18 (sat) 2017 to Jan. 27 (sat) 2018. He will construct a metaphorical cityscape of Ginza, using documents and merchandise from “Toho Koyanagi (Koyanagi Ceramics)” and other commercial entities such as Shiseido, in the form of an installation art. The effect is to visualize the efforts made by the predecessors to make believe a happy and ideal lifestyle, despite the catastrophic events like the Kanto Great Earthquake and WWII. The work was made possible by the artist’s research, looking into the archive of the Koyanagi’s, formerly a small department store specialized in ceramics, established in 1852.

Yuta Nakamura was born in 1983 in Tokyo, and now lives and works in Kyoto. In his dissertation when receiving PhD in Art from Kyoto Seika University, he researched the history of tiles and ceramics from an anthropological point of view. His style to create artworks based on minute examination gained recognition, and was invited to major group exhibitions such as Aichi Triennale and the 20th Biennale of Sydney both in 2016. He has an original and subjective approach, to weave the historical fact and cultural state into his artworks. The objects and installations composed of collected elements such as cracked pieces of ceramic, old books, old photographs, post cards and architectural plans, mixed with newly hand created things, seems to tell a fond story.

“Willow Festival” as you see in the exhibition title, was an actual festival that celebrated the symbolic willow trees along the Ginza main street, still cherished to this day. “Little Willow Festival” was a pun and a sales campaign directed by the 5th proprietor Kaichiro Koyanagi (1922–2010). (Ko means little and yanagi means willow in Japanese) He himself designed a small vertical banner-like tanzaku to festively and fashionably decorate his ceramic shop.

The solo show is in two parts, “Willow Festival” and “Little Willow Festival”. In “Willow Festival” he created 4 showcases, inspired by selected 4 facades that actually existed, shown along with chosen merchandise and documents. In “Little Willow Festival” he created a display shelf with ceramics and tanzaku banners in the manner of a still life painting depicting a dining table.

On the first day of the exhibition (Nov. 18) from 4–5:30 pm, the artist will have a gallery talk with Mami Kataoka, the chief curator of Mori Art Museum who has carefully watched the artist’s activities. From 6–8 pm the opening reception will be held in the presence of the artist. Please contact Gallery Koyanagi for additional visuals and documents.

Biography

Nakamura Yuta was born in Tokyo in 1983. He now resides in Kyoto. Nakamura received his PhD in Art from Kyoto Seika University in 2011. His dissertation was titled “Views about industrial arts in suburban houses: acceptance of white tiles used for the bathrooms in the Taisho Period.” He is engaged in production of tiles and ceramic wares from the viewpoint of “craft on the periphery of folk art and architecture.” Recent exhibitions include “Roppongi Crossing 2013/ Out of Doubt...in pursuit of future landscape,” held at Mori Art Museum in 2013. “The 8th Asia Pacific Triennial of Contemporary Art” held at Gallery of Modern Art in 2015. “20th Biennale of Sydney” held at Carriageworks in 2016. “Aichi Triennale 2016” held at Aichi Prefectural Museum of Art in 2016. He is running a curriculum called “APP ARTS STUDIO” to deepen the knowledge of industrial arts as applied arts and look at their production method from the viewpoint of producers.
